QUO ROCK AT THE CASTLE

Status Quo made Rochester Castle rock last week, setting the tone for the four-night summer concerts. The veteran outfit – led by singers Rick Parfitt (pictured) and Francis Rossi – performed at the historic castle gardens on the opening night of the gigs in front of a sell-out 4,000-strong crowd. The concerts went from rock to pop to classical, with chartoppers Will Young and The Saturdays taking to the stage before the Royal Philharmonic Concert Orchestra brought proceedings to a stunning close at the weekend.

BY SIMON ROBINSON

A SHAMED police inspector has been booted out of Kent Police on grounds of gross misconduct.

Dione Mayfield, from Rainham, was dismissed from the force on Thursday, July 8 – six weeks after being convicted of two drink driving and leaving the scene of an accident.

The inspector, stationed at police HQ in Maidstone, denied the charges but was found guilty of both offences at Maidstone Magistrates Court.

The court heard how Mayfield drove her Ford Focus in Bloors Lane, Rainham, on September 25, 2009, while nearly three times the drink drive limit.

She was found to have 103 microgrammes of alcohol per 100 millilitres of breath. The legal limit is 35.

Mayfield also smashed into another car in the same place on the same day and drove away, leading to a second charge of failing to stop at the scene of an accident.

During her trial, the inspector admitted getting behind the wheel while intoxicated, but insisted that a man named Jason had been driving the car at the time of the collision.

Mayfield claimed to have met the man as she came out of The Cricketers pub in Rainham High Street on September 24.

She said the pair went back to her house where they stayed up drinking until 5am.

Three hours later Mayfield said they got into her car – with Jason driving – and that he was

Bus users say service is not good enough

■ BY DAN COLUMBINI

DISGRUNTLED passengers have slammed the bus services in Medway with only 46 per cent saying they feel they receive value for money.

The damning statistic, revealed in a survey carried out by customer watchdog Passenger Focus, places Medway's buses as the joint worst out of the 14 areas that took part.

Statistics also show nearly 40 per cent of fare-paying passengers are 'very dissatisfied' with the service on offer.

A passenger who wished only to be known as Joel from Chatham said: "I get the bus everyday and sometimes I have to wait for at least ten minutes after the scheduled time. And the price for a single journey is far too expensive."

His opinion was shared by Malcolm Donald, another passenger in the Chatham area, who said: "I think the cost of public transport in general is too high, especially when you consider the amount of people who rely on it to travel to work."

In total, 892 Medway passengers took part to determine what areas of the bus services they were satisfied with.

Customers were asked to rate their satisfaction at the bus stop, whilst waiting for the bus, whilst on the bus, with the bus driver and with the overall journey.

The services scored highest in 'on the bus' factors, with 94 per cent of people satisfied with the ease of getting on and off, 92 per cent happy with the information provided on the outside of the bus and 88 per cent of passengers pleased with the availability of seats

UNHAPPY: Less than half of bus users are satisfied with the service

Despite the level of satisfaction being higher amongst free bus pass holders compared to fare-paying passengers, 89 per cent of people are pleased with their overall bus journey.

Safety does not appear to be an issue either, with 87 per cent of people feeling the driver kept to an appropriate speed and the same number agree that they feel safe from road accidents.

Colin Foxall CBE, chairman of Passenger Focus, said: "We are using this research to make a difference for passengers."

"Our researchers and regional managers have presented the findings to operators and local authorities and we are working with them on action plans to address areas of dissatisfaction."

The area where customers feel they receive the most value for money was Cornwall, where 68 per cent of people feel the service is up to standard.

Incidents are not related, say police

POLICE investigating two separate sex attacks in Rainham have moved to quash rumours circulating about the cases.

A statement was released by Medway Police this morning confirming the incidents are unrelated and that no further assaults have been reported.

Acting Superintendent Mark Arnold said: "Kent police in Medway have been made aware that there are a number of rumours circulating following two unconnected incidents which took place in Rainham last week."

"We would like to stress that these incidents are not connected and that no further incidents have taken place."

"In relation to the two reports, one is no longer being investigated as a stranger sexual assault and we are working with the individual involved to investigate an incident involving an acquaintance."

"The assault which took place on Rainham Recreation ground is currently still being investigated by the Major Crime Team."

"Anniversary checks were carried out in the area of the recreation ground and train station."

The first attack took place in Cherry Tree Road on Monday afternoon.

Forensic experts cordoned off the area to scour for evidence.

The second assault took place in Rainham Recreation Ground the following day.

The 41-year-old victim is said to have been grabbed within the grounds in Station Road at around 10.30pm. Police confirmed they were investigating a "serious assault".

Fined for driving van while using a mobile

A MOTORIST has been ordered to pay £120 after being caught using her mobile phone behind the wheel.

Diane West, of The Adelaide, Rochester, was sentenced at Faversham and Sittingbourne Magistrates Court on Friday, July 9.

The court heard how the 39-year-old was seen driving a Ford Transit van on Minster Road, Sheerness, while using a mobile phone.

She had her licence endorsed with three points, was fined £70 and ordered to pay £50 costs.

Drug and sex crime on the rise

THE number of reported sexual and drug offences in Medway has soared in the past year, latest Home Office figures have shown.

Statistics show drug related crimes went up by 14.9 per cent, an increase of 89 offences, between April 2009 and March 2010.

There were 30 additional sexual offences reported to police, a rise of 38 per cent, during the same period.

Chief Superintendent Steve Corbishley, Area Commander for Kent Police in Medway said: "Our pro-active work around drug offences, kerb crawlers and on street prostitution across Medway has seen our sexual offences and drug offences rise, but I am confident that this reflects positive work by officers."

"Hopefully, if we continue to tackle these issues robustly we will eventually see these figures follow other crime in Medway and go down."

Despite these increases, figures show that overall crime in the Medway area has reduced by 3,437 reported incidents, a decrease of 16 per cent.

The number of robberies has fallen by 26 offences (12 per cent), burglary of dwellings by 267 offences (28.6 per cent), criminal damage by 1,249 offences (25 per cent) and vehicle crime by 660 offences.

Superintendent Corbishley added: "Working alongside our partners such as Medway Council and the Drug and Alcohol Action Team (DAAT), Kent police in Medway are making great strides in crime reduction. We want residents to engage more with us and let us know the issues that matter to them. I would encourage people to contact their local neighbourhood officers or attend their next local meeting to find out more."

The figures are based on the rolling year and compare April 2009 to March 2010 with April 2008 to March 2009.

Rockin' all over the castle

■ BY SIMON ROBINSON

THE hugely popular Castle Concerts proved they were recession-proof last week by drawing thousands of music fans into Rochester on each evening of the four-night run.

The annual open air gigs, held in the picturesque surroundings of Rochester Castle, drew sell-out crowds on the first two nights and were near capacity for the final two.

Veteran rockers Status Quo kicked off the Castle Concerts on Wednesday night, playing to a receptive 4,000-strong audience.

The legendary five-piece outfit – fronted by Rick Parfitt and Francis Rossi – showed their appreciation to their devoted fans by performing an array of timeless classics, including Down Down, Mean Girl, Whatever You Want and, of course, Rockin' All Over The World.

Former Pop Idol winner Will Young carried on where the Quo left off, thrilling the sell-out crowd with his biggest hits and showing off his vocal range with a number of slower ballads.

All-girl group The Saturdays took to the stage on Friday night after X Factor-winning dance troupe Diversity had warmed the audience up with their precision routines.

And the concerts were once again brought to a fitting close with the spectacular Castle Proms event, which included a rousing Royal Philharmonic Concert Orchestra performance, wit flag-waving by the audience and a stunning fireworks display.

Concert goers said they were once again more than impressed with the gigs.

John Potter, 46, from Strood, who took in Status Quo on Wednesday, said: "You have to take your hat off to Medway Council, the concerts are really well organised and they're always a great night out."

"Tickets are not cheap but there's never any trouble and the bands they get to perform are always worth paying to see."

"I can't wait for next year's concerts."

A Medway Council spokesman said they were delighted with the turnouts on each night of the concerts.

"In total, more than 13,000 people attended the four nights of concerts," they said. "On top of this more than 3,000 people went along to the free Under Siege event on Sunday, featuring performance from young unsigned acts."

responsible for hitting the car in Bloors Lane.

She said the pair got into an argument over the damage, and he walked away. Mayfield, right, said she then got into the driver's seat to move the car to a safer place.

Kent Police tried to find Jason and ran DNA tests on a bottle of Courvoisier, two glasses and an ashtray that Mayfield said the pair were using, but results only showed Mayfield's DNA.

District judge Michael Kelly said Jason didn't exist.

Mayfield was sentenced to 200 hours community service, banned from driving for two years and ordered to pay £1,000 costs. She was also suspended from her position by Kent Police.

Officers assigned to find Jason said they were stunned by the force's determination to get their man. One officer, who didn't wish to be named, said: "I have worked on murder cases with less paperwork."

A Kent Police spokesman said: "Dionne Mayfield was dismissed from the force on Thursday, July 8, 2010 on grounds of gross misconduct. Effective forthwith."

Millions owed to our single parents

■ BY STEVE KNIGHT

SINGLE parents in Medway are missing out on a share of £25 million owed by their former partners through unpaid child maintenance.

The debt mountain is the total amount built up by non-resident mums and dads across the towns' three parliamentary constituencies, and is part of a much larger £3.8 billion owed by UK parents as a whole.

Medway, now re-named as the Rochester and Strood seat, has amassed a debt of £8.6m, ahead of both Chatham and Aylesford and Gillingham and Rainham, which both notched up £8.2m worth of debt.

The six-figure sums have seen each constituency make the top 100 national league table of shame compiled by the charity Gingerbread.

"These figures are shocking," said Gingerbread policy advisor Janet Allbeson. "Child maintenance matters so much to children of separated families and when it isn't paid it causes so many single parents to struggle financially."

"It's vital money that can make a huge difference when it comes to school meals, childcare and clothes and shoes, which are fantastically expensive these days.

"Obviously the circumstances of non-resident parents can change and they may now have less money than they had originally, but if that's the case then they should be getting in touch with the Child Support Agency (CSA) and negotiating a new payment plan."

"They can't just put their heads in the sand because their children really need them to contribute to their well being."

The total amount of child maintenance cash owed in Kent has built up since the formation of the CSA in 1993, although this still represents an annual debt of about £9m.

Ms Allbeson said the organisation – which is governed by the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission – should use all the tools at its disposal in collecting cash and enforcing payments.

"It's true the CSA has done better in recent years," she added. "But we really want them to keep the pressure up. Now is the time to really press on, clear the decks and make as many people as possible pay up."

Crouch calls for 'terror' photo arrest clarity

NEW MP Tracey Crouch has stood up for the rights of amateur photographers across the country by demanding assurances over the police's controversial stop-and-search powers.

Speaking in the House of Commons last week, the Chatham and Aylesford representative asked Home Secretary Theresa May to clarify her position on civil liberties.

Ms Crouch used amateur photographer Alex Turner, who was arrested on suspicion of being a terrorist in Chatham High Street last year, as an example of the previous Government's mishandling of its anti-terrorism legislation.

The Tory MP said: "Under the previous Government, a photographer from Medway was arrested in Chatham high street under section 44 stop-and-search powers.

"Will the Home Secretary assure the House that any future revision of anti-terror legislation will strike the right balance between protecting the public and safeguarding the rights of individuals?"

In response, Mrs May said: "I am happy to give that assurance to my hon. Friend.

"She may have noticed that in my statement I specifically said that we would look at the issue of photographers and stop-and-search powers. It is one issue that has been brought home forcibly to me."

Alex was arrested as he took photos in the high street in November last year.

He had been taking snaps in the area when he was approached by police demanding to know why he was using a camera. Mr Turner objected to the treatment he was being subjected to and took a picture of one of the female officers. He was subsequently arrested and told he was being held under the Prevention of Terrorism Act 2000.

Speaking at the time, Mr Turner said: "As I was arrested I was handcuffed. I asked why she had arrested me. She stated because I had taken a photograph of her and that she considered this to be an unlawful obstruction.

"After a short time I was led up the high street and detained in a police van for around 20 minutes."

Following a discussion between the arresting officers and some plain clothes colleagues that had arrived on the scene, Mr Turner was then 'de-arrested' and told he was free to go.

He was then informed that the reason for his arrest was because the female officer had been 'intimidated' by his size. He is 5ft 11in and weighs 12 stone.

Mr Turner, who was left embarrassed and traumatised by the incident, lodged a complaint with the force's Professional Standards Department and received a formal apology.

Drunk teen spat at cops

A DRUNK teenager spat at police after being thrown out of town centre park for being a nuisance.

Ashley Molyneux, 18, of Portland Street, Chatham, had been told not to come back to Brenchley Gardens, Maidstone, under local bylaws but returned within an hour.

He'd been given written and verbal warnings to leave but ignored them, Maidstone Magistrates were told. Molyneux admitted breaking the bylaw and assaulting two officers.

Jenny Yale, prosecuting, said CCTV cameras spotted the youth returning to the park and when officers turned up he tried to run away.

She said: "He started fighting with the officers and spat at one in the face. He spat five times and was using insulting words."

Karamjit Singh, defending, said Molyneux went back through the gardens because he wanted to catch a train home from Maidstone Barracks Station.

Coalition fails to impress

PRIME Minister David Cameron and his Second in Command Nick Clegg have failed to impress Kent residents during the first months of the Con/Lib coalition.

The political union, brought on following the General Election in May, is yet to capture the heart of voters in the county.

A poll on our website saw just 36 per cent of respondents say they had been impressed by the coalition.

A total of 83 responses were logged.

A SPEEDING driver has been disqualified for 30 days after racing along the A229.

The 25-year-old pleaded guilty to speeding and was sentenced at Faversham and Sittingbourne Magistrates Court on Friday, July 9.

He was disqualified from driving for 30 days, fined £200 and ordered to pay £50 costs.

Husband-to-be Mark Presland (pictured) popped the question to girlfriend Hannah over a candle-lit picnic in the castle grounds.

Community safety boss Mike O'Brien said: "It's not a request we get every day and so – on this occasion – we were more than happy to help. It goes without saying we wish them all the best for their big day."

A FRAUDSTER has been jailed for 18 months after swindling his former employer out of almost £250,000.

David Edwards was sentenced to 18 months behind bars at Maidstone Crown Court on Friday, July 9, after pleading guilty to fraud and theft offences.

The 38-year-old stole money from Beadles Toyota in Gillingham, where he worked from May 2004 to April 2009.

The cheat from Leybourne, Maidstone, wrote out company cheques to himself, paying them into his personal bank account. The criminal also used company accounts to directly pay off some of his outstanding bills.

Edwards ended up taking £245,627 from the company.

He was charged with theft by an employee and fraud by abuse of position in January following a police investigation.

Smithery a number one addition to the dockyard

■ BY SIMON ROBINSON

A MULTI-million pound maritime museum will open in Chatham Historic Dockyard this weekend.

The renovated No.1 Smithery, transformed with £13 million of funding, will open its doors to visitors for the first time on Saturday.

The multi-purpose building will house unique and previously unseen maritime artefacts, touring art exhibitions and interactive family learning and entertainment spaces.

Dockyard spokesman Gail James said the new museum and gallery would provide a wealth of entertainment to visitors.

She said: "The opening of No.1 Smithery brings a programme of exciting events and activities guaranteed to appeal to a wide range of ages. It is sure to add to the great day out a visit to The Historic Dockyard already provides."

The Smithery is divided into three sections; two display rooms – Maritime Treasures and The Gallery – and The Courtyard.

Maritime Treasures will house a range of maritime models, art and other objects from the collections of the National Maritime Museum and the Imperial War Museum as well as from the Historic Dockyard's own collection.

The Gallery will be used to display touring exhibitions. It opens with Resonance and Renewal, a newly restored collection of Stanley Spencer paintings called Shipbuilding on the

The Courtyard, in the heart of the building, gives visitors a chance to see a large section of the original building and will be used during school holidays to host a range of family activities.

No.1 Smithery has been renovated thanks to a partnership between Chatham Historic Dockyard Trust, the National Maritime Museum and the Imperial War Museum.

A limited-edition beer has been brewed to mark the opening of the museum and gallery.

The special Shepherd Neame ale, also named No.1 Smithery, is now available across Medway.

Chatham Historic Dockyard Trust chief executive Bill Ferris said: "We are delighted Shepherd Neame has joined with us in celebrating the opening of No.1 Smithery."

"As this amazing new museum experience marks such an important development for Medway it is both fitting and delicious to be able to toast the opening with this beer."

The limited edition ale will be available at The Ship and Trades, The Alexandra Hotel and The General at Sea in Chatham, The United Services in Gillingham, The Two Brewers in Rochester and The Tudor Rose in Upnor.

QUESTION & ANSWER

KELLY ALFORD

Q Tell us a bit about yourself

A I live in the East End of London and work for an architectural consultancy. I love anything creative, whether it be designing a poster or planting vegetables in the garden.

Q What does Kent Greyhound Rescue do?

A Rescues and re-homes abused and neglected greyhounds on their way to be put to sleep. Most are ex-racers.

Q How did you get involved?

A We re-homed a failed ex-racer, Jack, through KGR. He'd been badly abused and cruelly trained. He needed a home where he'd be the only dog and trained to socialise with other dogs. We've had him six months and couldn't ask for a better hound.

Q What does your role involve?

A I work on the creative, design, production and advertising side and do home checks.

Q Where do the dogs in your care come from?

A Usually Ireland or the north of England. Some have been raced illegally or rescued from travellers.

Q What are the best and worst parts of your role?

A Worst part is seeing dogs arrive malnourished, injured and cowed. The best part is seeing a rescued greyhound re-homed by a loving family where they will be cared for.

Q Advice for anyone looking to re-home a dog?

A Pick a hound that fits your lifestyle. Everyone wants a cute puppy but forgets that it may pee indoors and chew the furniture. There's a lot to be said for picking an older greyhound – the chase instinct is less, and they are more relaxed and house-trained. Be practical about what you want from a pet and take it from there.

Q How easy are greyhounds to look after?

A Greyhounds are inherently lazy. They are sprinters, not long-distance runners, so after an initial spurt they're done for the day.

A good half-hour walk in the morning and again in the evening will suffice in the week, and at weekends, a nice long walk as a treat. Your greyhound will then sleep or lay in its bed the rest of the time.

Greyhounds have thinner skins and less dense fur than other dogs, so if the weather is cold, your greyhound should be wearing a coat. Also, in summer, be wary of heat exhaustion and keep them hydrated and cool. Feeding bowls should be raised. They are prone to an illness called bloat, which can kill. But overall, a greyhound is easy to own.

Q What other services does KGR offer?

A We run a forum [see web address below] where all matters pertaining to greyhounds are discussed. We are all very supportive and ready to chip in with help and advice.

Q What can people do to help the charity?

Labour announce new candidate

FORMER geography lecturer John Jones has been chosen as Labour's candidate for the upcoming River Ward by-election.

The Brompton resident will be hoping to replace Bill Esterson, who gave up the seat after being elected as MP for Sefton Central, Merseyside.

Mr Jones said: "I'm really proud to have been selected for this ward, as I've lived here now for nearly ten years and spend a lot of time working with community groups to improve our area.

"As chair of the local PACT committee and chair of the local residents' association, I feel I'm very aware of the issues facing this area.

"For me, the greatest challenge is how to successfully regenerate Chatham and the surrounding areas, in a way that takes current residents along.

"I also feel that it's not just about physical regeneration, but helping residents realise their ambitions too."

His predecessor Bill Esterson MP said: "I've worked with John for many years and he knows the area incredibly well.

"We've worked on campaigns against ugly buildings in the conservation area, and getting more street lights, and also supporting all the families connected to the barracks. I know John will make a fantastic councillor and advocate for River Ward."

The election will take place on Thursday, August 12.

River Ward has two elected councillors. The other is Conservative Craig Mackinlay.

Happy feet are the best result during World Cup

■ BY JOE BILL

SPAIN'S triumph at the World Cup was not the only success story to come out of South Africa as a woman from Medway made her own mark on the people of Cape Town.

Sinead Penn, 29, was invited out to the city by her fiancé Dan Wilson who had won an all expenses paid trip to see Spain vs Portugal and Argentina vs Germany at the tournament.

The publications officer at Greenwich University's Medway campus jumped at the chance of the trip but also took the opportunity to make a difference.

Sinead said: "It was an amazing prize and Africa has always been a place I wanted to visit.

"Over the World Cup period I had seen a lot of media coverage about the townships around city and I wanted to help the people there.

"I did some research and got put in touch with a lady called Laura Ndukwana."

Laura lives in Gugulethu, a township about 15km from the centre of Cape Town.

She provides a breakfast club for 26 children every morning using leftovers donated by restaurants. For some of the orphaned children, it is the only meal they get each day.

Sinead said: "I contacted Laura and explained that I wanted to help. She said the children

Before flying out for her holiday of a lifetime, Sinead raised £300 with the help of her friends.

Due to marry fiancé Dan in September 2011, Sinead said: "I met Laura and we bought 26 new pairs of shoes.

"It was a very emotional experience and the children were so grateful.

"Visiting the township was a life-changing experience, it really puts a lot into perspective.

"Just that £300 brought so much happiness and now having been there, seeing how much they need, I want to start fundraising properly and go back in March to help Laura and the beautiful children in her community."

High flyers lured by academy push

■ BY MARIJKE COX

SOME of Kent's highest achieving schools seem destined to break away from local authority control as they push to become academies.

Eleven of those rated "outstanding" by Ofsted have already started formal proceedings to become academies, just weeks after education secretary Michael Gove invited all schools to apply. Subject to parliamentary approval of the academies bill, the schools could change as soon as September.

Schools converting to academies will be given more independence and responsibility, despite remaining publicly funded. That includes the ability to set their own pay for staff, have greater control of budgets and freedom from the National Curriculum.

New figures show 95 schools in Kent and nine in Medway have expressed an interest in becoming academies. Unlike the Labour academies policy, which focused on poor-performing schools, high-achieving primaries and secondaries, including grammars, are being encouraged by the new Government to convert.

These schools will be offered a one-off £25,000 payment in the form of a conversion grant. But County Hall officials and education experts don't like it. A report to be discussed by KCC's education department touched on the impact the new academy policy could have on funding and equality.

It states: "New academies should receive the same level of per-pupil funding as local authority maintained schools. However, new academies will also receive a share of the local authority budget that provides for central services and will receive substantial top-up funding to meet additional responsibilities."

The report goes on to explain how the Government grant reduction from KCC's budget as each school moved from its control was supposed not to leave taxpayers out of pocket, but this would not happen.

"It had previously been assumed the amount deducted from Kent's budget equated to the additional grant paid to the academy. This is not the case. There is therefore an additional cost to the public purse, currently met from central government funds, for each converting school. On average, the total paid to an academy is over six times the amount deducted from KCC."

The report said the policy was not creating a

"level playing field" for schools. Last month, KCC leader Cllr Paul Carter urged head teachers to exercise "extreme caution" before agreeing to become academies because not enough information had been released.

And Andrew Somers, head of Hartsdown Technology College in Margate, said the county would have a three-tier system after the scrapping of Building Schools for the Future (BSF) programme.

But independent education adviser Peter Read said it had gone further than that. "There will actually be four categories – grammars, new BSF schools, those that go without and, the fourth, academies," he said. "This means the schools that are not grammars, not refurbished, or not academies, will be at the bottom of the pile."

Teacher suspensions double in a year

THE number of teachers suspended from classroom duties in Kent has more than doubled in just a year.

Figures obtained through a Freedom of Information Act request to County Hall revealed how one teacher a week is being suspended from primary and secondary schools in Kent.

In 2008-09, the total for the year was 19, but this more than doubled in 2009-10, with 43 being temporarily taken out of the classroom. Reasons for suspensions included child protection issues, which can range from allegations of verbal abuse, unreasonable force against a pupil and, in worst cases, indecent assault.

Almost £300,000 was spent in 2009-10 providing cover for those suspended, with £260,648 the previous year and in 2007-08 – where the number of suspended teachers was 31 – £265,053. The figures did not include schools in Medway, which was unable to provide details. A Kent County Council spokesman said the authority made it clear schools should avoid suspension wherever possible, but sometimes it was unavoidable.

"Child protection suspensions are necessary when an allegation is made against a member of staff," he said. We need to make sure the allegation is fully investigated without the member of staff being at work.

But teachers' unions say the majority of investigations are later dropped and there have been cases of false allegations by pupils.

Marian Darke, regional secretary for the National Union of Teachers (NUT), said she was surprised by the figures and criticised the suspension policy.

"We believe it is a problem where the tendency is to suspend teachers first, then carry out an investigation later," she said.

"The vast majority of cases are dropped and the allegations unfounded. It seems they are guilty until proven innocent."

Ms Darke said allegations can be distressing for teachers, which can lead to many not returning to the classroom.

"When it is seen that a member of staff is not at school, rumours spread and it makes it difficult for teachers to come back, even if they are innocent," she said. "The situation needs to be handled better."

Of the teachers 43 suspended in 2009-10, eight have returned to the school, 18 have not and 17 investigations are on-going.

The KCC spokesman admitted cases were often dropped: "Reaching a conclusion that an allegation is false is rare, mainly because finding proof is difficult. It can often be the word of a child against that of a teacher."

Ex-con's fight to put offenders on right path

A NOTORIOUS bank robber who once rubbed shoulders with the Krays is to address the Government on plans to create 'rehabilitation villages' for offenders.

Bobby Cummines, who turned his back on the criminal world after 13 years in jail, has produced the proposals in response to the UK's high re-offending rate and overcrowded prisons.

And despite his background, the former criminal – convicted of possession of a sawn-off shotgun when aged just 16 – is determined to help others find a way out of crime.

As chief executive of Unlock, a Snodland-based charity helping people with previous convictions, and as a former advisor to Tony Blair's Government, Mr Cummines thinks this is possible on a large scale.

He said: "I know what it's like to live that life. I was in prison for 13 years. For some of these youngsters, you send them to jail and they come out trained in organised crime."

"My recommendation to the new Government is our Diamond Project, which puts all organisations needed to reduce offending in one place, at the heart of the community."

"I want to not only make sure they stay out of prison, but get them qualified in a trade and keep them off the dole."

The ex-con, who lives in Ashford, plans to use private investment to build 28-acre centres in cities across the country – communities within themselves – with learning and training facilities, shops, restaurants, counselling services, police stations and, for the more vulnerable people, accommodation.

Pharmaceuticals team wins top prize

A TEAM of university chemists has scooped a top European pharmacy prize.

A University of Greenwich project raising higher educational standards in Europe for people deciding on which drugs should be available for distribution has been awarded an accolade by the European Association of Faculties of Pharmacy.

The team led by Dr Milan Antonijevic, senior lecturer in pharmaceutical analysis at the University of Greenwich's School of Science at Chatham Maritime, took top honours at the association's conference in Catania, Sicily.

Dr Antonijevic

Their entry addresses key themes of bringing different countries and academic disciplines together and raising standards in pharmaceuticals education.

Backed by Tempus IV funding from the European Commission, the team also includes representatives from Trinity College, Dublin; the University of Belgrade, Serbia; the University of Ljubljana and the Institute for Business, Excellence and Innovation in Slovenia.

Dr Antonijevic said: "We have also been working with Serbian government health experts and their Drug Agency, Pharmaceutical Chamber and Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Group Council.

"Together we are developing approaches that will standardise best practice and ensure compatibility of training and how to deliver it for people responsible for approving medicines, particularly for postgraduate courses and qualifications."

University hosts African education conference

■ BY MATHEW BEECH

AN INTERNATIONAL summit is being held by the University of Greenwich at Medway.

The university is taking a leading role in an international project to provide postgraduates in sub-Saharan Africa with the high-level skills demanded by employers.

Three Nigerian, one South African and three UK university representatives attended an Education Partnerships in Africa project conference at the School of Engineering, at Chatham Maritime, on Tuesday, June 22.

The delegates were discussing how best to include the essential skills into the courses and training opportunities for engineering, IT and business students in sub-Saharan Africa.

The £4.5 million Education Partnerships in Africa (EPA) scheme was launched by the Department for Business, Innovation and Skills (BIS) in 2008 and is managed by the British Council.

EPA is enabling UK higher and further education providers to work with similar education organisations in sub-Saharan Africa to boost economic development.

The head of the University of Greenwich School of Engineering, professor Ndy Ekere, said: "We are the lead partner in an 18-month EPA programme looking at the best approaches to embedding employability skills within postgraduate programmes.

"We were delighted to welcome conference representatives from the University of Wolverhampton and London South Bank University to engage with delegates from our

OUT OF AFRICA: Delegates from across the continents meet at the EPA conference at the University of Greenwich

Nigerian partners including the University of Benin, the Federal University of Technology, Owerri, and Abia State University, Uturu.

"The conference was opened by University of Greenwich Deputy Vice-Chancellor for Research and Enterprise, Professor Tom Barnes, and our keynote speaker was Professor Kanes Rajah, Director of the Business School at Tshwane University of Technology, Pretoria."

The dean of Engineering and Environmental Studies of Abia State University, professor Iche Kalu, said: "The wide range of conference participants and high level of expertise from across the University of Greenwich enabled us to consider specific case studies from Nigeria and to work through approaches to improve the links between businesses and employers with education providers."

Many roles of our motorbike police teams

NOT everyone is looking forward to the long hot days of summer.

For the Kent Police motorcycle team it isn't the most comfortable time of year, dressed in thick, black, biker's leathers and crash helmets.

But comfort isn't top of their list of priorities – whereas the safety of the public is, which means they have to go out in all weathers even if they are baking hot in the summer and freezing cold in the winter.

Kent Police has a central motorcycle team who are sent to whichever part of the county they are needed most and motorcyclists are based at stations around Kent.

Police motorcycles are needed for many functions from policing traffic at major events to attending road accidents. They are able to get through traffic jams quickly to provide assistance to those in need.

Escort

They are often used to tackle speeding or inconsiderate drivers, having both marked and unmarked motorbikes which are fitted with video recording equipment which can later be used in court.

The motorcycle team sometimes provides VIP escorts. In the past they have escorted the late Queen Mother to Walmer Castle and Prince Charles and Prince Andrew during visits to the county. They also escort visiting heads of state and if required provide funeral escorts to servicemen and women who have died serving their country.

They can also be called on to escort high value or abnormal loads. They recently escorted lorries carrying turbine blades to a wind farm on the Romney Marsh as they travelled along the motorway. They are also called upon for the fast delivery of forensic evidence from crime scenes.

PC Dave Greenwood, from the central motorcycle team, said: "One of our aims is also to educate the public regarding driving or riding. If we see a motorist who we think needs advising about their driving we will stop them and offer them advice. This could prevent an accident in the future.

"We have an enforcement role which sees us stopping speeding drivers. We also deal with drivers who are breaking the law in other ways, perhaps driving without insurance or driving dangerously."

■ BY JANE BARLOW

The team works to reduce the number of people in the county who are killed or seriously injured in road accidents. It does this by tackling speeders, those who are not wearing seat belts, careless or dangerous drivers and others who use their mobile phones while at the wheel.

The bikes they use are BMW R1200RTPs although the force also has Yamaha 450cc Enduro off-road motorbikes for which officers are given special training to ride. These are used to target off-road bikers who are causing a nuisance or breaking the law, other off-road vehicles and to search large areas of the countryside for missing people.

PC Greenwood said: "We go to areas where there have been complaints and stop people using off-road vehicles. If they are driving or riding illegally we can issue them with a warning notice, which means if they are caught again we have the power to seize their vehicle. We prosecute offenders if they do not have valid insurance and are using their vehicles on a road or in a public place. We also give safety advice, as these riders are often not wearing crash helmets or protective clothing."

The motorcycle team also runs a project called Bikesafe. This involves officers providing a one-day training course for motorcyclists, giving them tips and advice on safer riding.

Time for women to become Bishops

THE Archbishop of Canterbury's right-hand man has welcomed a decision by the Church of England's ruling body to allow the ordination of female bishops.

Bishop of Dover Trevor Willmott – who runs the Canterbury diocese in Dr Rowan Williams' absence – was a member of the steering committee that led discussions during this week's historic meeting of the General Synod.

He told KOS Media the ordination of female bishops was the next logical step following previous decisions to allow women to become priests and deacons.

"Everyone knows I'm in favour of women bishops," said Bishop Trevor. "But I'm also in favour of keeping the Church together, which is a difficult task shared by most members of the synod."

"As far as I'm concerned the Christian faith says there is no distinction between male and female, so God is calling women to share in the ministry of the church.

"It therefore seems right and proper that they should be allowed to become bishops, and perhaps we should have been clearer on this issue when the decisions were made regarding female priests and deacons in 1987 and 1992."

"I always knew it was something we would come to eventually, and now we have."

The draft law approved by the General Synod must now receive the green light from the majority of the Church's 44 dioceses.

It must then return to the synod and receive a two-thirds majority vote, before receiving parliamentary approval and finally the Royal Assent.

Traditionalist Anglicans who opposed the move have been given minimal concessions, but leading figures in the Church say it is now inevitable that dissatisfied members will leave.

YOUR LETTERS

We'll all soon need a drink, or five

My new MP Mark Reckless's drunken indiscretion on the night of the budget vote is to be deplored, but not for the reason he thinks.

In itself, getting a bit squiffy after a late night at the office is no hanging offence – it's a mistake, and one he is unlikely to repeat.

But it is indicative of the casual manner in which he and his fellow Tories are approaching the programme of cuts and tax rises which are to be inflicted on those who can least afford them.

Mr Reckless will lose no sleep over those workers, in both the private and public sectors, who will be put out of work by a stalled economic recovery. Those whom the Tories really represent tend to weather such storms – and some, like carrion crows, actually thrive on them.

But for ordinary workers and taxpayers – those who can't afford offshore accountants – the ramifications are clear. As goods become more expensive we all pay the price, either directly at the checkout, or indirectly as local businesses face even smaller profit margins and money disappears from Kent's economy.

Just as it was under Conservative governments in the 80s and 90s, the short-termism of drastic budget cuts and dogmatic destruction of public services will be painted all over the boarded up shops, crumbling schools and thwarted regeneration of Tory Medway.

That's enough to make anyone want to drown their sorrows.

Alex Paterson
Rochester
By email

He's not set much of a high standard

Along with his fellow Medway MPs, Tracey Crouch and Rehman Chisti, Mr Reckless (a surname never more apt) signed a Clean Campaign Pledge which included a clause to "uphold high standards if successfully elected to Westminster".

Two months into the job as an MP, he allows himself to miss one of the most important votes of the year.

Dave,
Chatham

your blogger

Tom Betts lets fly about his distaste for seagulls as he prepares for the coming of Gullmageddon...

I USED to think seagulls were funny, and perhaps even a little bit cool in a strange sort of way.

To me the birds seemed to have a rebellious attitude that made me laugh. I admired their pluck – but that was before I moved to Thanet.

In recent years, things have gone a little too far. I am certain this country will soon be in the grip of these beasts, a trend it will be hard to reverse.

We may be on the verge of Gullmageddon and the UK's first seagull-related death is on the way, just you mark my words.

Residents across the isle will no doubt sympathise with my views as the gulls tear their way through rubbish sacks and spread litter across the streets – a story I have reported on in the past.

The noise is also another negative.

Every morning I am woken up by an ASBO gull flock who camp out on our roof with little more in their tiny minds than causing as much racket as possible for hours on end.

Not fun when you're nursing a hangover or in desperate need of sleep.

No, their noise is not the pleasant twittering and trilling of other birds, but an assault on the eardrums that even double-glazing cannot halt.

The shrill screeching and squawking is nice when heard every so often on a day out at the seaside but not every single day.

If there is a story in your area you think we should be covering contact the news editor, Simon Robinson, on 01303 817185 or email him on the details above. If you want to be the next Medway blogger then all you have to do is submit an article to us (of around 550 words) and email it to the editor. ## Mr Reckless is sadly living up to his name

Seems to me to be Reckless by name and reckless by nature. Also these are the people who want to eradicate so-called binge drinking.

David,
Ashford

He could celebrate his lack of problems

There is much for Tory MPs to celebrate. The problems besetting most of us don't stop the fun for them.

Great job if found a safe seat with party approval. Portcullis House or the other in-house hosteliaries cater for MPs/guests at our cost. No matter how hard life is for taxpayers voters, the top and bottom of UK society have got it made.

When we lose jobs or homes we do not get the favourable treatment or rescue that corporate, political and state sector jobsworths get. Austerity, not for them?

Rita Grootendorst,
Bexley

Is drunkenness a regular occurrence?

I noted Mr Reckless said: "If I was in the sort of situation generally where I thought I was drunk I tend to go home."

Does that mean this is not an unusual situation for him to be in? Not the best example to our youth who are being told to be more careful about drinking too much.

Peter Wyatt,
Halling

Many of us get out of bed for a lot less

I was surprised to see a letter in your paper last week from Mr

Collins criticising Bill Esterson MP for resigning his seat on Medway council, since just last week he wrote condemning him for not resigning. This now leaves just the two Conservative councillors drawing two salaries and getting paid by both Westminster and Medway. Worse than Bill Esterson resigning, in the analysis of Mr Collins, is that the Labour Party started fighting the subsequent by-election, called by residents, before the Conservatives had managed to organise themselves to fight the election. We are lucky to have Mr Collins to keep an eye on these things.

While re-reading his letter, I was reminded that he addressed the subject of Medway councillors and their pay. It seems that their mean average pay is £13,818.18 per annum which, he says, is not enough to get most people out of bed in the mornings.

As a pensioner, like most others, I still manage to lever myself up each morning for a good deal less than £13,818.18. Furthermore the minimum wage in this country is, I believe, £5.86 per hour that is £234.40 for a 40hr week, or £12,188.80 per annum, so there are a countless people who work hard but get less than the mean pay of Medway councillors but still have to get up every morning – many of them far earlier than the average Medway councillor.

Medway's a river, not a fantasy city

What Medway Council failed to do was ask the population of the area if they wanted the idiotically named city of Medway.

In common with their normal 'consultations' on matters affecting residents and businesses, this was not done and the decision was railroaded through.

What poor old Rodney fails to mention is that the council made sure Rochester lost its city status in 1998 (how convenient!). After 1,400 years of being known as and having official city status.

The cost of renewing its status was insignificant compared to millions spent on the propaganda machinery, creation of a new website and logo, plus all those presentations and meetings. An unacceptable waste of rate payers' money.

The Medway is the name of the river, not this fantasy city that lives inside the heads of these morons who treat residents and businesses in these towns with contempt.

Godfrey George
by email

Rochester will always be the city here

Once again, Rodney and his cronies have decided they can do whatever they like without appropriate consultation.

You have to question the motivation, as well as the system that allows this to happen. Rochester is still a city in spirit and will continue to be so long after today's political 'elite' has gone tomorrow. Medway is something else altogether, and we don't like the wool being pulled over our eyes.

Poorest will be hit hardest by cuts

Kent Green Party is concerned by new reports indicating how the coalition Government's policies hurt the poorest households in Kent and Medway most.

People receiving benefits have already seen their purchasing power drop in recent years. Freezing child benefit, cutting housing benefit and refusing to link the minimum wage of £5.80 per hour to inflation mean low income households will be worse off in real terms year after year.

Research shows the recent budget will cut the income of the least well off households by about 21.7 per cent of household income, whilst wealthier households will only lose 3.6 per cent.

In practice, this means the poorest households in each part of Kent and Medway will cut their spending with local businesses.

This will mean job losses in the private sector, particularly in retail.

Kent Green Party notes it would be far more prudent to raise the minimum wage, to keep people working in public services and to sustain local economies.

The savage and irresponsible cuts in public spending will not help local businesses.

There is simply no need to repeat the cuts and unemployment of the 80s when a fairer tax system and higher minimum incomes could protect both jobs and services.

Why does this coalition want to penalise the poor?

Team have the Hart to rescue us from danger

■ BY MARIJKE COX

A CREW of paramedics specially trained to deliver life-saving treatment at the heart of dangerous situations has started work in Kent.

The 40-strong Hazardous Area Response Team (HART) will work closely with other emergency services at the centre of major incidents, where previously they would have been restricted to the sidelines.

Chief executive of the South East Coast Ambulance Service NHS Trust (SECamb), Paul Sutton, said it is a valuable addition.

"As an emergency service, SECamb is of course already trained and experienced in expertly dealing with major incidents and this will continue," he said. "However, the introduction of HART enhances that experience and capability further still."

Traditionally, ambulance crews relied on firefighters to make an area safe before they could access what is known as the "hot zone" or inner cordon – potentially dangerous situations, such as fire or chemical threats.

It meant paramedics from SECamb were unable to get to patients until it was deemed safe. In other cases, ambulance staff had to wait for the patients – in some cases needing life-saving care – to be brought to them by firefighters.

BRAVE RESCUERS: Members of Hart are trained to attend to casualties in a number of hazardous situations

But following the terror attacks on London on July 7, 2005, where ambulance crews were able to work at the centre of the incident where there was no contamination, health chiefs nationwide began to roll out the HART initiative, funded by the Department of Health.

In Kent, the team of clinicians, who are based at Brookfields Industrial Estate in Ashford, have undergone intensive preparation.

As well as training in breathing apparatus and gas-tight chemical suits, each member of the team received lessons in urban search and rescue and working at heights.

The crew, who now also form the ambulance service's maritime incident response team, will use specialist vehicles, including off-road 4x4s and a state-of-the-art command vehicle.

Matthew England, SECamb's HART manager, said the new team will significantly enhance the service at major incidents across Kent, Sussex and Surrey.

"It will allow patients who are trapped, or in areas previously deemed unsafe for ambulance staff to enter, the opportunity to receive clinical care at a much earlier stage than has been previously possible," he said.

"Fire crews will of course still perform their vital role, but HART clinicians will be able to remove patients from smoke-filled environments, for example, bringing high-quality care to those who urgently require it."

When not responding to HART calls, the team will provide additional support with two single response vehicles and carry out a rigorous training schedule.

Andy Parr, head of emergency preparedness at SECamb, said the initiative will influence what happens to many patients involved in serious incidents.

He added: "The SECamb HART members have been working very hard over the past months to develop new skills to help in this new, exciting and necessary role."

Parents hit by children's debt

DEBT-ridden youngsters who depend on their parents to bail them out have been blamed for an increase in bankruptcy among over-55s.

According to the Consumer Credit Counselling Service (CCCS), mums and dads who pay off their children's student loans or help them onto the property ladder by providing money for deposits are risking insolvency themselves.

The charity says that 16.1 per cent of those who went bankrupt in Kent last year were over 55, compared to just 15.1 per cent nationally.

Equity release manager Tom Moloney said families should seek advice before deciding how to tackle large debts: "Parents are providing a lot more support to their children, but in many cases this is not manageable and they end up in serious financial trouble themselves."

"There should be nothing wrong with mums and dads wanting to help their children, but both sides should get expert advice first to make sure the resources are there to carry the debt."

To tackle the rising trend of parents going bankrupt, the CCCS has launched the subsidiary firm CCCS Equity Release to provide free advice to people with financial problems. Equity release allows homeowners to release money from a property worth at least £60,000, but is only available for over-55s and is usually only considered as a last resort.

Mr Moloney said: "You're never going to be able to stop the bank of mum and dad, but we're here to make sure it runs okay."

The CCCS runs a free debt counselling service at www.cccs.co.uk or call 0800 138111, 8am-8pm, Monday to Friday.

Meet the monks at heart of town

TOTALLY MONKED

Tuesday, July 27,
High Street, Rochester

VISITORS to Rochester will be transported back in time next week when history comes to life on the High Street.

Shoppers could bump into a medieval monk on Tuesday as Rochester Cathedral and Medway Council celebrate the town's monastic heritage. Totally Monked is a fascinating free event which gives visitors and residents alike the chance to find out more about Rochester's colourful history.

Following the success of the Tudor Festivities last year, another day of educational family fun has been arranged to shed light on Rochester's past. Totally Monked is an interactive trail which gives people the opportunity to meet the monks in person.

The trail guides followers around the town, revealing Rochester's monastic and Norman heritage on the way and guiding participants to some very special locations. Five monks will set themselves up in the town and will each demonstrate some ancient skills and crafts.

Find out more about trades such as wine-making and bee-keeping. The beautiful, flowing art of calligraphy will also be demonstrated as the monks reveal some of the ways that people made their living in medieval times.

Those who follow the trail can collect an activity card from the cathedral welcome desk or the first monk they find. Simply collect a stamp from each monk, and when all five stamps have been received, the holder will receive a goodie bag.

Take home an unusual souvenir by having a monastic family portrait taken in the Cloister Garth, or try your hand at brass rubbing and follow the Norman trails.

There will also be guided tours of the monastery on which the present cathedral building was founded, in this intriguing event which is supported by the new BBC campaign, Hands on History.

Full of fun activities for all the family, Totally Monked runs from 11am to 5pm. For more information visit www.rochestercathedral.org.

Anyone interested in history has a rare chance to see one of the county's national treasures during the event. From Monday to next Wednesday, a priceless manuscript will be on display in the Cathedral Crypt for the first time in six years.

Textus Roffensis was written by a monk in 1123 AD and contains the first written record of the English language.

Believed to have inspired the Magna Carta, the document is in two parts and was bound together some time after 1300.

In the first section, a collection of Anglo-Saxon legislation – the first written laws since Roman times – can be seen, from the conversion of King Aethelberht of Kent (circa 604 AD) to the coronation charter of King Henry I (1100 AD). The barons who drafted the Magna Carta during the next century were influenced by the document, which is usually kept in an archive by Medway Council.

The second part is described as a memorandum book and is the oldest and most precious of the cathedral's registers. In 2007, the British Library named Textus Roffensis as one of the country's national treasures.

The document's full title is the Textus de Ecclesia Roffensi per Ernulfum episcopum, which means the Book of the Church of Rochester through Bishop Ernulf. Textus Roffensis will be on display from 1-5pm on Monday, 10am to 5pm on Tuesday and 10am to 2pm on Wednesday. Admission is free.

bolic rate. All exercise will maintain or increase lean tissue, but resistance work in particular will give the most benefits.

Resistance work is also important for maintaining healthy bone mass, strong soft tissues and good posture, and should be included wherever possible.

Becoming active is the most important aspect of increasing your metabolism. Start with short periods of moderate intensity activity and build up to around 40 mins per day.

PEPPA PIG

Saturday, July 24, & Sunday, July 25, Orchard Theatre, Dartford

CHILDREN are invited to join in the fun when popular TV character Peppa Pig celebrates her birthday.

The BAFTA award-winning animated series has delighted children across Europe and now she is making the leap from the television screen to the live stage. After a brief tour last autumn, Peppa Pig's Party is back on the road for a much-bigger tour and the puppet version is proving to be a big hit with young audiences.

Puppetry consultant Nigel Plaskitt has worked on Spitting Image and many films, such as Labyrinth and various Muppets movies, so the puppet incarnations were in good hands.

Today is a very special day because it's Peppa Pig's birthday and all her friends are invited to come to her party. Her younger brother George, Suzy Sheep, Danny Dog and Emily Elephant will all be joining in the fun in this captivating production which boasts brand-new songs and plenty of oinks.

Tickets cost £15.50 for adults, £13.50 for children and £54 for families of four. Book online at www.orchardtheatre.co.uk or call the box office on 01322 220000.

METALWORK EXHIBITION

Saturday, July 24, to Sunday, October 3, Rochester Art Gallery & Craft Case, Rochester

WOMEN will be showing their mettle in a new group exhibition of by seven contemporary female makers.

Taking their inspiration from a wide range of sources, such as nature and the urban landscape, the exhibitors have created elegant forms, enamelled drawings and fascinating objects. They have also been inspired by the historical and domestic contexts of the materials, allowing them to pursue domestic, sculptural and narrative themes in their work.

Using the arts of metalwork and silversmithing, the makers have given some contemporary perspectives on techniques commonly used with their material, along with the qualities and values associated with it.

Exhibitors include Danish, London-based metalsmith Ane Christenson, who likes to explore the boundaries between function and sculptural form, and Northern Irish silversmith Suzanne Wall whose work looks at ideas of preciousness.

On Saturday, September 4, artist Kate Samuels will lead a free family workshop in print, drawing and mark making. Places must be booked in advance on 01634 338319.

Admission to the exhibition is free. To find out more visit www.medway.gov.uk/arts.

GORDON GILTRAP

With more than 40 years' experience in the business, Giltrap has become a highly versatile player who can straddle various styles, to the delight of his many fans all over the world. Now one of our finest guitarists, he counts players as diverse as Hank Marvin, Pete Townsend, Bert Jansch and John Williams among his influences.

Giltrap's outstanding ability has attracted much praise from his peers, including Queen guitarist Brian May, who once described Giltrap as "one of the elite few who truly have become legendary in their field in their own lifetime".

Giltrap has won a coveted Ivor Novello award and released more than 25 albums. He scored a hit single with Heartsong, which was later used as the theme tune for the BBC's Holiday Programme.

The concert starts at 8pm and tickets cost £10 or £9 for folk mailing list members. To book, call the box office on 01634 338338 or go online at www.thebrooktheatre.co.uk.

POLKA DOT

Ongoing, Polka Dot Art Centre, Teynham

LITTER is taking over a garden in Teynham as part of an artistic project by Polka Dot.

Artists Sioux Peto and Colin Barnard made some very intriguing discoveries in the garden of the centre in London Road and a new entity seems to be spreading there, threatening to take over our countryside within years.

The Garden of England project is designed to raise awareness of littering, by creating a garden made out of rubbish. With the help of young people from volunteer group Vinolved, the artists had a busy weekend creating brightly coloured growths using rubbish. The ongoing project can be seen at Polka Dot throughout the summer and the artists hope it will make people think about what littering does to the environment.

"If we don't stop littering, nature will take matters into her own hands and mutate into the life forms that can now be seen in the Polka Dot garden!" Peto said.

Polka Dot Art Centre is open from 10am to 4pm every Saturday, but is also open for associated workshops. For more information about events there, visit www.polkadotac.co.uk.

MICA PARIS

Friday, July 30, Pizza Express, Maidstone

SOUL queen Mica Paris has touched the lives of her fans with both her music and her writing.

Famous for her soaring vocal talent, Paris also became a popular television personality when she hosted makeover show What Not to Wear. Moved by the stories of the women she met during filming, Paris was inspired to look at her own life and wrote a book called Beautiful Within.

Last year she released her first original studio album for 10 years, Born Again, and her first single from the album was written by James Morrison. Baby Come Back Now was a retro number which Morrison wrote specifically for Paris' remarkable voice and now fans can hear her soulful tones in the intimate atmosphere of the Music Room at Pizza Express.

After making her earliest appearances with a gospel choir, Paris progressed to becoming a backing singer and finally released her own album, the platinum-selling So Good. The album featured her first top 10 hit, You Are My One Temptation, and launched her career into orbit.

The concert starts at 8pm and tickets cost £25. To book, visit www.pizzaexpresslive.com.

Go wild in the country as you forage for food on hotel break

■ BY TOM BETTS

OWNERS of a Kent hotel are urging guests to embrace their wild side.

Staff at the acclaimed Walleth's Court Hotel, in St Margarets-at-Cliffe, near Dover, have launched a new Hunter and Forager experience for those who want to delve deeper into the countryside.

The trips will enable guests the chance to get an authentic taste of just what is on offer in the surrounding area.

Run by experts Gavin Oakley and Peter Kelly, two men with a background in rural pursuits, the experience combines two aspects of rural life with an interesting day out.

Typically, guests stay in one of the two well-equipped outdoor teepees and are woken by the guides early for a day to remember.

At dawn the pair lead small parties into the countryside near Dover to track down and hunt game such as rabbits and pigeons.

Peter, who has represented his country at shooting, said: "It's a very interesting experience for guests. We teach them how to use the guns before actually hunting for food."

Once a few specimens have been bagged with a 12-bore shotgun, they are taken back to the hotel, where you can learn how to cook and prepare the food.

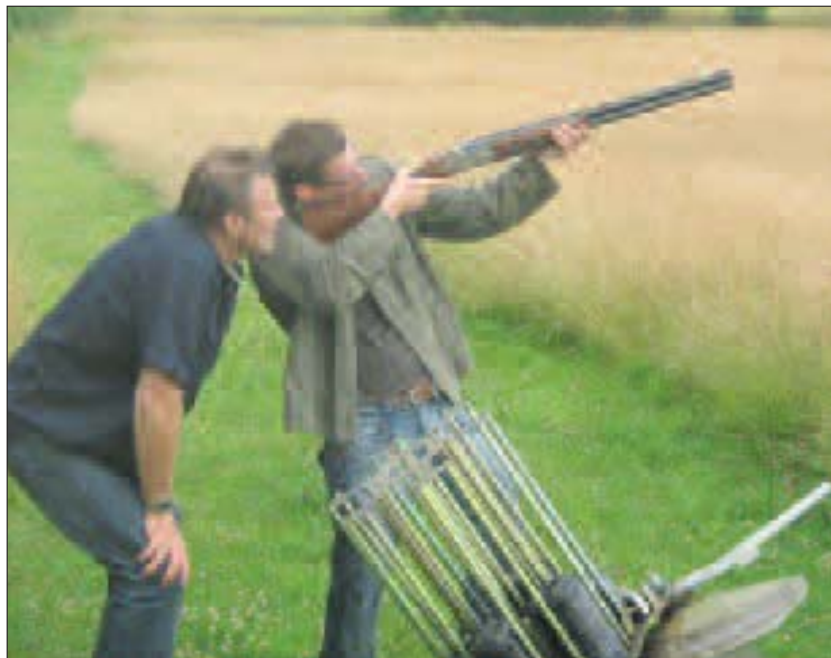

The head chef at Walleth's Court, Ryan Tasker, leads the demonstrations, which include plucking birds and skinning rabbits, before cooking up dishes such as ballotine of rabbit with summer white-truffle emulsion.

After lunch and drinks, Gavin takes over and leads out parties to forage for food.

The range of what is available soon becomes clear as the walk winds its way from the hotel, heading into the South Foreland valley across the stunning coastline, before finishing down in St Margaret's Bay, where more foraging takes place in the rock-pools.

Guests will gather fare such as wild fennel, crab apples, wild cabbage, horseradish, sea lettuce, sea beet and sea purslane along the way.

Gavin said: "The food that is available free, growing naturally, is often overlooked. It's surprising what you can find to eat right under your noses. The countryside around St Margaret's is full of delicious produce."

"For me it's really enjoyable to show people just what is here. Growing up in the area, I have learned just what can be foraged and eaten."

As with the hunting part of the day, the food that has been collected is then taken back to Walleth's Court for a foragers' supper, with dishes such as sea bream with an olive and caper sauce and crushed new potatoes with spinach and wild fennel foam with sea lettuce.

Gavin said: "Seeing some of the ingredients that you have brought back land on the table in front of you is very satisfying. It really brings home just how much we can gather from the land around us."

"We hope these trips will take off. Everyone is welcome to book. We have led some successful test excursions to see if people enjoyed it and the results have been really positive."

For more information about the Hunter and Forager break, phone the hotel on 01304 852424 or check out the website at www.wallethscourthotel.com.

FOOD FOR FREE: Clockwise from above, Tom Betts lines up a shot, guided by Peter Kelly; head chef Ryan prepares a freshly shot and skinned rabbit; the resultant ballotine of rabbit; and leaders Gavin Oakley and Peter Kelly

WANNABE CHEFS: Former World Cup footballers Carlton Palmer, Neil Ruddock, Frank Worthington and John Fashanu got highly competitive in the kitchen

YOUR TV REVIEW

COME DINE WITH ME: Channel 4, from 12.50pm weekdays
HOLBY CITY: BBC1, 8pm Tuesday

■ BY TOM BETTS

A COUPLE of years ago, when Come Dine With Me first appeared on our screens, I slated it.

Writing in this column, I labelled the whole thing "idiotic", but I may have been too quick to judge.

In fact, I was plain wrong because I now believe it to be a work of art.

It has spawned many imitators, as most successful TV shows do, and the inevitable celebrity version arrived quicker than you could say 'John Fashanu has just goosed Carlton Palmer'.

It is the standard episodes, though, featuring the fearless and foolhardy Great British Public, that usually work the best.

Never underestimate just how cringeworthy a 40-something estate agent wanting to impress with his pan-fried turbot and wild rocket salad can be.

Narrator Dave Lamb guides the viewer through the episode, dispensing disparaging remarks along the way, and is usually good for a few laughs.

It's an easy enough job, as the amateur cooks competing for what seems like a pretty measly £1,000 prize do more than enough to make utter plebs of themselves.

If you haven't tuned in before, then do so just once, if only to remind yourself never to hold a dinner party.

LIVING in Holby is a dangerous business. You're dicing with death every time you wake up in the fictional town.

It doesn't matter who you are – expect the grim reaper or serious injury to come knocking sooner rather than later.

Better to stay in bed, although you're likely to become entangled in your duvet and suffocate to death.

Mind you, it might be preferable to be stabbed in the jugular falling on to a block of kitchen knives or to meet your maker by drowning face down in a bowl of cookie dough than suffer the ignominy of being admitted to Holby City General.

The staff are a horrible bunch.

Engaged in extra-marital affairs, back-stabbing and general moaning and nastiness, they make the EastEnders cast look like a clean-cut bunch of high moral standing.

If the NHS really is like this, then we must crack on with privatisation.

Naturally, my mother, who loves all things medical, tragic and repetitive, is addicted to it.

MOTORS NEWS

Summer countdown to Corsa's massive cuts

VAUXHALL'S popular Corsa supermini is being offered for less than £8,000 as the headline deal in the brand's Big Summer Countdown until July 31.

The tempting package is on the Corsa S 1.0-litre three-door model and under Vauxhall's Swappage Support part exchange scheme – it represents a £3,035 saving over its list price of £11,030.

Vauxhall marketing chief Peter Hope said: "The terrific deals being offered are exemplified by the new Corsa being made available for less than £8,000."

Crossover flagship now has a diesel alternative

NISSAN appears nigh on unstoppable in the hatchback/MPV/SUV crossover sector it identified with the successful Qashqai.

It will shortly launch a baby version called the Juke and has brought out a revision of the big Murano SUV as a flagship crossover to sit above the pair of them.

This time the muscular Murano is also offered with diesel power, a 190PS (188bhp) 2.5-litre that can average around 35mpg and expected to cater for 90 per cent of sales – it can be ordered now from £37,795.

Mean and miserly VW wins green car award

VOLKSWAGEN'S ultra green Golf 1.6 TDI 105 BlueMotion five-door was voted Car of the Year at the What Car? magazine's Green Awards.

What Car? editor-in-chief Steve Fowler said: "Volkswagen has built a hugely desirable car that's big on ability, but small on running costs. The Golf BlueMotion does an enviable 74.3mpg and emits just 99g/km of CO<sub>2</sub>, which means it is exempt from road tax, while company car tax will be based on just 13 per cent of its £18,685 list price. It's a package that's hard to beat."

TIME TRAVELLER: Kia's Ceed comes with a seven-year/100,000-mile warranty, but the real news is the option of an effective stop-and-go system that's currently the market leader

Kia's warranties are all set to reach warp seven

KIA continues to bend time like no other manufacturer. It seems only yesterday that I drove a previous generation Kia Rio (2001-05) and lamented many failings and, the final insult, a break down.

But that car is light years behind the Korean brand's Ford Focus challenger, the Ceed (from £12,150) launched in 2007, and recently given a makeover.

It arrived then with a mould-breaking seven-year/100,000-mile warranty – the perfect lure for sceptical punters with the tried and tested Focus, VW Golf and Vauxhall Astra in their sights, but also a potentially expensive gamble.

It wasn't though, and Kia has since decided to offer a seven-year 'top-up' on used Ceed sold through its dealers – that's confidence – and all new Kias now come with a seven-year warranty too.

Aware that the 2007-vintage Ceed could be fidgety, Kia also tweaked the facelift car's handling in that relatively short time span and brushed it up inside and out – notably with a sleeker and more upmarket grille.

STAR QUALITY	OUT OF FIVE

Green rating	★★★★★

The real news is the option of an effective automatic stop-and-go system that kills the engine at the lights or when stopped in heavy traffic and then smoothly re-starts it again.

Known as Intelligent Stop and Go (ISG) it is one of the market's best systems and offered on the car's junior 89bhp 1.6-litre/six-speed manual diesel powertrain (£14,500) tested here and wearing Kia's new green 'EcoDynamics' sub-branding with energy-saving tyres.

This environmentally-friendly Ceed has an official combined fuel consumption of 67.3mpg and CO<sub>2</sub> emissions of just 110g/km – no road tax for year one and just £20/year thereafter.

The same powertrain without the eco stuff saves £1,325 and still averages in the mid-60s for mpg and with the same road tax benefits.

But that's with 'Ceed 1' trim, still giving air con and generous standard comforts, but the dearer EcoDynamics version comes with 'Ceed 2' spec including alloys and electric mirrors, so 'going eco' is not so dear after all. And the EcoDynamics does not ask you to drive like a vegan either; with the improved handling of the Ceed range generally it's a tidy drive, smoothly powered and a triple-saver on fuel, pricing and that 'buy-it and forget-it' seven-year warranty.

CRICKET

BY DAVID PRITCHARD

Kent League Premier Division

Lordswood 1st XI v St Lawrence & Highland Court 1st XI

ALAN Pattenden hit a half-century but it was not enough to prevent Lordswood's title hopes taking a dent with a 57-run defeat at home to leaders St Lawrence.

The game was there to be won for both sides after St Lawrence were bowled out for a respectable, but by no means intimidating 231. But Lordswood, who had Kent seamer Amjad Khan in their ranks, lost wickets too cheaply in their reply and finished up well short.

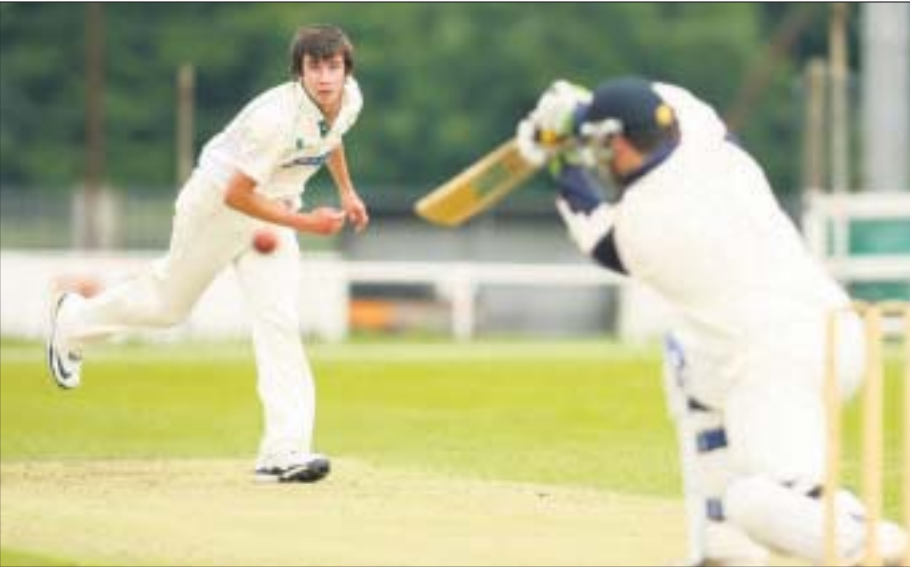

St Lawrence were put into bat after losing the toss and yet again in-form openers Matthew Lincoln (23) and Daniel Stickels (47) got them away to a good start. The pair had put on 71 by the time Lincoln was bowled by Khan, in action to test his injured hamstring ahead of a recall to the Kent side.

Skipper Lewis Jenkins could only add six to the total, but Paul Dixey (31) and Shannon Fattore (28) kept the score ticking over. St Lawrence were grateful to Kit Sims for his 27 at number eight, which helped the visitors reach 231 when Khan, who was hit for 86 from his nine overs, took the final wicket.

The Lords were 39 for 3 in reply before Alan Pattenden (54) and Khan (35) joined forces. The pair put on 76 for the fourth wicket, but it was the last partnership of any note as St Lawrence's bowlers struck. Alistair Neale finished with 3 for 34 as Lordswood were all out in the 44th over.

The defeat saw the gap between Lordswood and the leaders grow from eight points to 21 ahead of this weekend's trip to second-placed Bromley.

Lordswood fail in bid to beat the league leaders

DISAPPOINTING: Lordswood (bowling) suffered a defeat which saw them lose valuable ground in the title race

KENT LEAGUE DIVISION THREE

2ND XI

Old Wilsonians 2nd XI v Upchurch 2nd XI

JIM Phillips missed out on a century but his disappointment was short-lived as Upchurch 2nds sealed a five-wicket victory against Old Wilsonians 2nds.

Ivan Willis got some joy with the new ball to remove the Wilsonians' top three, before they fought back with a half-century from Hugo Lovelock. Balachandran Sanjiv also took three wickets to restrict the hosts to 169 for 8.

Phillips then took over Upchurch's reply, dominating the scoring to take the league leaders to the brink of victory. The opener was caught on 98, but Alex Taylor and Bradleigh Barrett finished the job.

KENT REGIONAL LEAGUE

CHAMPIONSHIP EAST

Yalding 1st XI v Old Williamsons 1st XI

HUGO Parnell fell just short of a century but it was enough to guide Old Williamsons to a three-wicket victory at Yalding.

Phil Patterson and Jonathan Child took early wickets in Yalding's innings and despite some resistance from Alistair Ratcliff, the visitors were largely in control. Parnell and Peter Meyers finished with three wickets each as the hosts were bowled out for 155.

Parnell led from the front in reply, hitting 96 before he was finally bowled by Jumshad Haider. Andy Wood then guided Old Williamsons home for a victory to keep them second in the table.

Hessenthaler to give Fleet goalkeeper Gills contract

FOOTBALL

BY DAVE PRITCHARD

DECISIONS will be made today on the four players on trial at Gillingham after they were put through their paces against Peterborough last night.

After a gentle start to pre-season with a series of fixtures against non-league opposition, the intensity went up a notch with the visit of Gary Johnson's League One side. It acted as the final test for the remaining trialists – goalkeeper Lance Cronin, defender Tony Sinclair and midfielders Danny Spiller and Stanley Aborah.

Gills boss Andy Hessenthaler looks set to offer ex-Ebbsfleet goalkeeper Cronin a deal, but the other three needed to impress against the Posh to justify their place in the squad.

He said: "I'd like to do something with Lance, he's shown enough. As long as the demands aren't too high and we can afford it, I think he would be good competition for the number one jersey. Alan Julian has to be kept on his toes."

"The other three have all done well, but I think come the Peterborough game we'll make a decision."

Gillingham enjoyed their biggest win in pre-season so far on Saturday when they beat RUFC Calais 4-0. After a delayed kick-off due to confusion by the hosts, Luke Rooney, Stefan

Payne and Chris Palmer made the most of defensive errors to put the Gills 3-0 up at half-time.

Dennis Oli completed the scoring in the second-half to round off the victory. The game also saw a debut for Cody McDonald, whose season-long loan deal from Norwich was agreed last Thursday. The former Dartford striker comes in to help bolster an attacking unit which lost top scorer Simeon Jackson, who moved to Carrow Road last week.

Hessenthaler is pleased to have McDonald on board, but is keen to use some of the transfer fee to buy another goalscorer.

He said: "I think we've got to look at trying to bring in someone else. We need a combination there to get enough competition for places up front. You can see what Cody's got, he's very bright and tricky and has looked good in training. He's going to be an exciting player for the team."

EXIT: Rob Denness (blue) is to join Sittingbourne

Boss expects to lose Probets and Denness

CHATHAM Town manager Paul Foley is resigned to losing Rob Denness and Ashley Probets after the pair were invited to train elsewhere in pre-season.

Denness has linked up with Sittingbourne, while Probets has made the jump up two divisions to be considered for Dartford's tilt in the Blue Square South.

Both players were in the group of eight from last season's Chats squad which Foley wanted to keep. The Town boss has left the door open for them to return, but feels it is unlikely.

He said: "I am expecting them to sign for both clubs but they know that they are welcome back if it does not work out for one reason or another. The same goes for Justin Ascheri, who has been approached by a couple of clubs also."

Centre-back Ben Payne has also left, dropping a division to join up with Erith Town.

The remainder of the squad finally begin their programme of friendlies this weekend with a trip to Kent League side Herne Bay. The players have been back in training for almost three weeks and Foley is pleased with overall fitness levels.

He said: "All in all the squad is looking in good shape with plenty of options available for the season ahead and it has gone better than I could have hoped for really. We'll have done eight sessions before Herne Bay and we should be on the way with our fitness heading into a succession of good friendlies to get the match sharpness back."

After a long delay due to Grays Athletic's financial problems the Chats should receive their fixtures this week. With the Essex club admitted to the Ryman North last week, Town will have an extra two league games this season in an expanded division.

McGuigan recognises Tom as future talent

BOXING

BOXING legend Barry McGuigan has tipped Tom Dallas for a bright future in the ring after watching the Kent heavyweight make an impressive start to his professional career.

It is 25 years since McGuigan, who now lives in Kent, shot to fame by winning the WBA featherweight title, but he has kept a close eye on the sport.

Dallas, a Chatham-born boxer, is undefeated after 11 bouts, winning eight by knockout since turning professional in 2007. His most recent fight came three weeks ago when he defeated Russian Daniil Peretyatko at the Brentwood Centre in Essex.

The 25-year-old's steady climb up the rankings has come to the attention of McGuigan, who believes he has all the skills to become a top heavyweight.

He said: "He is maturing and in his last fight he looked like he has improved quite a lot. I'll keep an eye out for him because he is moving along pretty good."

"It's too early to say where he will be in the future, we all tend to get excited about heavyweights, but in this profession you need to have a reasoned view. He is doing very well but he has a long way to go in a difficult division. There are issues he has got to work on as a fighter – he is in the embryonic stages of a heavyweight boxer. But he has got great credentials, punches hard and is very serious about his career."

BEATEN: Medway Dragons under-18s were defeated after staging a fight-back

Brave Dragons youth lose out in Grand Final

MEDWAY Dragons under-18s staged a terrific fight-back but fell just short of winning their London RL Junior League Grand Final on Sunday.

Played at The Stoop, home of Super League team Harlequins, the Dragons took on rivals Greenwich Admirals for the overall title.

The Admirals made all the early running and after initially being kept out by some determined defending, the pressure told. The Dragons found themselves 12-0 down at the half-time interval and the deficit was quickly extended to 18 shortly after the resumption.

Ryan Ellis got the Dragons on the board with a try which was converted by Callum Bowie. The pair then repeated the trick to close the gap before Doug Ebanks stormed over from 40 yards. Bowie's conversion levelled the scores.

Unfortunately they could not maintain the momentum and Greenwich pinched a final try to seal a 24-18 victory.

There was also disappointment for the Dragons' under-13s, who lost their final 44-14 to the Brentwood Elvers, but head coach Martin Cloyd remained upbeat.

He said: "To have two teams in the London RL Grand Finals is a first and also big step forward for us this year. We will build through the winter and be even stronger in 2011."
